Building and Garden Lots,

CONTIGUOUS to, and at a small distance from the city, to be sold at the coffee house in Second street, on Wednesday the 20th of March, at 6 o'clock in the evening, containing from about 1-4 of an acre to about 4 acres each. The small lots fronting on Vine and Callowhill streets, on the west side of Schuylkill Second street, and the large lots containing whole or half or quarter squares, some of them bounded on the west by Schuylkill and the upper ferry road including some fine quarry lots on Schuylkill: the whole containing about 140 acres, and formerly known by the name of Springsbury; bounded on the north by Francis street, extending from the Ridge road to Schuylkill, crossing the canal, on which several of the lots will give fronts.

The situation of many of the large lots is on high ground, commanding beautiful views of the Schuylkill, supposed to be sufficiently detached to escape any unfortunate disorder which may be prevalent in the city.—The terms will be made known at the time of the sale.

N. B. Maps of the lots are fixed up at the middle and upper ferries on Schuylkill; at Seybert's Tavern, in Second street, Northern Liberties; at Ogdens tavern in Chesnut street, and at the coffee house.

The convenience of stone so near the premises will prove very advantageous to purchasers.

CONNELLY & Co. auct'rs.

Postponement.

☞ The uncommon severity of the weather having prevented many persons from viewing the lots above described, the sale is postponed until Saturday the 20th April next, when it will be held on the premises, at 2 o'clock in the afternoon.

The terms will be cash for those lots which are 50 feet, and 49 and an half feet front, and for those of a larger size, one half the cash to be paid down and the other half in six months from the day of sale.

TAKE NOTICE,

THAT I am to be sold on such terms, that the purchaser need not advance any cash, unless he pleases, till it is earned by my services, provided no accident happens me; or, if you please, I am to be farmed out for two years, and not less. I am a bright bay, full 15¼ hands high, of noble descent, my name is TRIMMER—I was got by Hall's imported horse Eclipse, my dam, purchased by Doctor Hall, was got by the imported horse Slim; my grand dam was got by Old Figure; my great grand dam by Taskers Othello out of Selima, &c. &c. as will more fully appear by William Lyle's attested certificate who raised me. My character as a racer is well established; I won the colt's purse at Bladensburg of twenty guineas; I won a fifty guinea purse at Baltimore, a fifty guinea purse at Annapolis and a fifty guinea purse at Hagerstown. I never lost a race but the last I run at Alexandria, which was owning to my being badly shod, as I lost all my plates before I got in. I am in fine plight, sound in every respect; my offspring are in great repute, some of which are now in training for the turf—procure me good stands and entertainment and I am able to earn one thousand dollars per annum.

Any person inclining to buy or rent may know the terms by applying to John Carnan (Lovehall) Cecil county and state of Maryland, eight miles south of Elkton.

JACOB PERKINS,

HAVING invented an effectual check for detecting counterfeit Bank Paper, which has received the sanction of one Bank, and the approbation of the undersigned eminent artists, and having obtained a patent, securing to him, and to his assigns, the exclusive right of the invention, hereby offers to his fellow citizens the privilege of using it upon terms, to be agreed on between him and any person disposed to avail themselves of a guard against counterfeits.

THE undersigned having examined Jacob Perkin's new invented method to detect counterfeit Bank paper, do approve of the plan, it being impossible to engrave or sink two plates perfectly alike, without the original die or hub, the counterfeiter would find it impossible to make an impression which would perfectly gage with the check from the original die.

LESBURG, March 14.

THE LYON, NO QUADRUPED!

On Tuesday evening last arrived in town from Philadelphia, General STEPHENS THOMPSON MASON, accompanied by his most valuable friend the VERMONT LYON, of SPITTING memory. Immediately on his arrival he received the adorations of all the DEMOCRATS, of our country, who were not averse to partake of his saliva, and the only thing wanting, to render the scene completely awful was the presence of Logan and Calender. The difference between the African and Vermont Lions is very considerable, the latter, tho' no quadruped, appears to be far the most beastly, while he possesses the sanguinary disposition, he is entirely destitute of all the noble qualities of the former. What the object of our blabbing senator is in receiving into his house such despicable beings as a Calender and a Lyon appears mysterious, unless they are to receive some of the commissions that were probably received at Charleston in the tubs, from the French directory

NEW-LONDON, March 20.

Capt. Van Deurson informs that Mr. Robinson, the officer sent by captain Truxton to Guadaloupe, Bassaterre, to negotiate an exchange of prisoners, on landing was obliged to draw his sword to defend himself from insult. A file of soldiers, however, soon arrived for his protection. Desforneaux being at Point Petre; horses and a guard were furnished Mr. R. to conduct him there.

Mr. Robinson has returned, and the French prisoners were all sent to Guadaloupe, before captain V. left St. Kitts; excepting about forty Danes, Swedes, &c. who were detained.

Captain Vandeurson brought dispatches from captain Truxton, which were this morning sent on to Philadelphia by express.

Arrived, ship Concord, Van Deurson, 12 days from St. Thomas's; two days before he left St. Thomas's, a French privateer brig chaced on shore a brig from S. Carolina, on the west end of St. Thomas's. Came through the passage in company with the Montezuma, whom he left in chace of a brig, which he took for the French cruiser that run the brig a shore on St. Thomas's.

Captain Van Deursen informs, that the Insurgente was all compleat for sea, when he left. St. Kitts, which was on the first of March, and commodore Truxton informed him that he intended she should sail on a cruise in one week; they were recruiting men for the Insurgente at St. Thomas's when he left there.

BOSTON, March 16.

The schooner Mary, capt. Watkins, arrived yesterday from Bourdeaux;—passage 95 days. Doctor Timothy Green came passenger in her.

From the length of the passage political news cannot be expected. We have been favored with Paris papers to 10th Frimaire, [about the first of December] and Bourdeaux Commercial Advertisers to the 5th December. They contain little on subjects worthy observation.

By this arrival we learn—that notwithstanding the French Directory enforces all its mandates with violence, and the public voice is obliged to take any pitch given it, the general opinion is opposed to an open war with the United States; while at the same time, a description of subjects are very willing to share the American property which daily arrives at Bourdeaux, and which is readily pronounced bon prise. To the disgrace of the American name, many of our unworthy countrymen, are partakers in this nefarious brigandage. Amongst them we have heard of a Randall, a Savage, &c. whose conduct would appear as black as Erebus, if even placed in contact with the most attrocious enormities of the licensed plunderers of the coast of Barbary.

A half column of the Paris "Gazette Nationale," is occupied in publishing the account of the erection of a pitiful Liberty Pole, in the town of Wallingsford, in Vermont!

From the Oracle of the Day.

NATIONAL ETHICS.

THERE are many influential men in America who possess much of the present French philosophy: men who are inimical to the Christian religion, and to the most important moral obligations, and rules of society which it imposes: some of whom are atheists, and wish to unbridle every passion; to dissolve the bonds which hold community and introduce every thing unchaste, corrupt and deviliish.—Others have prophesied, expected and assisted with all the weapons of sarcasm, ridicule & sophistry, the speedy distruction of Christianity. There is an unfeeling feeling in infidels to make all of their opinion; to deprive men of a solace and comfort, which they can see gives cheerfulness to their prosperity, and a balm to their afflictions. This unjustifiable inclination is predominant among the advocates of French Philosophy. The introduction of brothrels would be to them a happy institute for the divine obligations of the marriage covenant. They would be satisfied were the ministers of the gospel, stage actors; and the temples of God converted to playhouses of indelicate and corrupt manners, or a rendezvous for gamblers, tiplers, and the promiscuous fruition of abandoned prostitutes; a frolicking decade, instead of the sabbath, and eternal sleep, for a happy immortality.

We wish not to impress the idea that all the Jacobins are men of this class; but that the larger part of the leading characters are such. The chief ruler among them has long borne such a character.

We would demand of such men what can be their obsect. The language of their hearts will respond—ambition, such as moved the spirit of our Grand Parent, previous to his fall from Heaven, urges us on to deeds of hellish consequence and dreadful fame. Let them ask themselves a question, always useful in revolutions of religion as well as government: CUIBONO? Whose good will be advanced? Truth will answer, the good of none, not even of yourselves.

We cannot but regret there should be, as certainly there are, many men of respectability for probity and understanding, who unwittingly support a party, the consequence of whose politics & opinions they themselves detest. Some of them have a dislike to the constitution; but the larger part a jealousy, virtuous when not carried to extremes, which makes them suspicious of every public officer and every measure of government. Let this jealousy be carefully watched, lest it carry them to lengths of which they may have afterwards cause of bitter repentance.

THE ENVOY'S CRITERION No. II.

THE means, employed to awaken our distinguished Envoy from his political lethargy, must be highly gratifying to every friend of honour and patriotism; and to every mind that views with contempt, a voluntary subject of Gallic chicanery and imposition. The mind of Mr. G. as was manifest from the credulity and avidity, with which he received professions of the most glaring inconsistency, never experienced a single humiliating emotion, till his sensibility received a shock from the consideration of personal resentment and personal indignity. It was then that his mind became first susceptible of other ideas, than the volatile suggestions of vanity, aided by the fawning complaisance and grateful insinuations of designing sycophants. It was then that he was brought to consider the source of his diplomatic authority deserving of higher consideration than his character. It was then, in short that a political regeneration began its work, and left our solitary Envoy no longer in a suitable habit to "dream of things impossible."

Although the renovating shock must have been too violent to leave him at first with the faculties of reasoning; on the return of cool reflection, the simple progress of analogy would lead him to a consideration of the original contempt shewn him in conjunction with his colleagues when personal prejudices rendered him more conspicuous, than the diplomatic seal of his country!

The motives of this extraordinary politician, whatever may be his pretensions, are so clearly demonstrated in his line of conduct as to preclude the necessity of an explanation A popular name must be singularly grateful to one so captivated with

——Blockhead's flattery,
Whose praise defames, as though a fool should mean
By spitting on your face to make it clean.

To be the sole agent of softening the affections of the most formidable power the world had exhibited toward an offending nation, whose candid, and liberal proposals, could merit no return but "resign your authority, and deliver your purse" must be a deed of immortal honor; And the memory of the author must be cherished with the most lively emotions of gratitude, when his honourable bones, no longer active in the service of his country, should take up their peaceful abode in dull cold marble.

But our sagacious Envoy has imagined the genius of his country unable to fathom the depths of his profound understanding; and trace the clue of politics that exalted him to the sole dignity of the Talleyrand negociation; he has, therefore, through the medium of the Secretary of State, in a learned and elaborate communication, bid his countrymen "be silent that," they "may hear, and give ear that" they "may understand." A critical review of this communication, with further remarks on the character therein depicted, shall appear in future numbers.

VINES.

To the Gentlemen of Philadelphia.

AMONGST fruit trees, the superiority of the vine is universally acknowledged, and the reason why there are so few, and why those few bear so little fruit, is, that the plants are not properly cultivated.

That part of the culture of the vine which requires most experience and most care, is the pruning, for which the season is now arrived. The subscriber, who has to remain some days in the city, will with pleasure prune the vines (gratis) of any gentleman who will accept of his services, and who will send his address to him at Mr Moutea's, No. 27, Sugar alley.——His long experience in the culture of the vine, and the extraordinary success of his vineyard at SPRING MILL, must he imagines, be a sufficient assurance, that this inestimable plant can never suffer under his hands.

P. S. Mr. Jocky requests the several printers to give the above a place in their gazettes; and, though its insertion can tend to the benefit of their customers alone, he will look upon it as a favour, which he shall be happy to repay by a bottle of his old American Wine, if they will honor him with a visit at Spring Mill, 13 miles from Philadelphia, on the Ridge Road.

To all whom it may concern.

THE Creditors of the Subscriber are desired to take notice, that application has been made to the Court of Common Pleas of Mifflin County, in the State of Pennsylvania, in order that the applicant may receive the benefit of the several laws passed for the relief of insolvent debtors, and the said court have appointed the second Monday in April next, to hear him and his creditors at the court house in Lewis Town, in the said county.

Foreign Intelligence.

LONDON, Dec. 23.

Dispatches were received on Friday, at the Office of Mr. Secretary Dundas, from Earl Macartney, Governor of the Settlement of the Cape of Good Hope, dated the 18th of September. And private letters we understand, were received, at the same time, from General Dundas and Admiral Sir Hugh Christian, K. B. of so late a date as the 1st of October. We are happy to learn that the garrison and inhabitants of the settlement were in a state of perfect health.

By the arrangements that are made at the Cape for sending a reinforcement of troops to India, to consist of about Two Thousand Men, added to the force already there, any hopes of conquest which the French might have formed in that quarter of the world, would be completely disappointed.

YARMOUTH, Dec. 16.

The Russian Admiral's ship from the violence of her beating, makes a great deal of water, and on Friday evening her rudder came on shore. Yesterday, the Diana packet Capt. Osborne, landed her mails, passengers, and upwards of 30,000l. in specie and bullion. Admiral Lord Duncan this day struck his flag, and Vice Admiral Dickson hoisted his flag, blue, at the fore, on board the Monmouth. This day his Lordship left Yarmouth for his seat in Perthshire. The packets, owing to a thick fog, are still prevented from sailing.

PETERSBURGH, November 15.

The Emperor Paul I. immediately after his accession to the Throne renounced the Alliance with the Powers at war with France by the advice of Prince Karakin, whom he appointed his Minister. Having since been succeeded in the office of Vice-Chancellor, which is the second station in the Empire, by M. de Kotstubey, nephew of the Chancellor Prince Bedborodsko, there was an immediate change in the political system of the count. It was M. de Kotstubey, who during his Embassy at Constantinople made the basis of the Treaty between Russia and the Porte. The first change was followed by many others both in the Administration and the Army.

The Corps of General Rosemberg entered Germany to serve as auxiliaries against the French it is composed of two columns, each consisting of two divisions. The first column and division, commanded by Lieutenant-General Levow, consists of 6,380 Infantry and 3-234 Cavalry. The first division of the second column has 6,307 Foot and 2.787 Horse, is under the command of Lieutenant-General Paul Swelkowski, having Brigadier Tirlow under him. He also leads the second division, with which are the Majors General Kodschin and Sercikowski; that is composed of 5,145 Infantry, and 3,072 Cavalry—the whole of the four divisions amounting to 23 462 Foot and 12,287 Horse. In this army are a great number of Cossacks, who from the advanced and rear guard of each division.

The Court Gazette has published the ordor issued to the Army by the Emperor previous to its march. His Majesty expresses, to the Colonels of the Regiment and the Commandants of Grenadier Battalions, "his great satisfaction and acknowledgment of the order order that reigns in this corps; and to the soldiers, convinced of their inviolable fidelity, their zeal and bravery, he already anticipates those heroic actions by which they will signalize themselves in the annihilation of those who are the enemies of religion, as well as of humanity in general." [This Letter which is from a distinguished personage in Russia, may serve to refute the absurd stories with which the Paris Papers are filled respecting the composition and discipline of the Russian Army now marching towards the Danube.]

The Gazette.

PHILADELPHIA,

MONDAY EVENING, MARCH 25.

There is every reaſon to doubt the information contained in our Gazette of Saturday, reſpecting the pretended diſaſters of the king of Naples. We find that a ſimilar report prevailed in Paris, and was even publiſhed in the Gazettes of the Pentarchs with all the air of authenticity, ſo far back as the 20th December. In this caſe, the expulſion of the Neapolitans from Rome, is ſaid to have been effected by the Sanſculotte General Macdonald. According to the manuſcript account of the St. Lucar captain, it was Championet, who worked the miracles therein related.

It is very poſſible that M'Donald may have gained ſome advantage over the detachment under the Prince, who had made a diviſion towards Civita Vecchia and Ancona: This the drooping Directors would naturally magnify. But that the grand army, animated by the preſence of the King, and under the conduct of one of the ableſt Auſtrian generals, fluſhed by the capture of imperial Rome, could bend to the preſſure of any force that France could bring againſt it, is not at all probable. The Neapolitans are decidedly the beſt troops of Italy, and have never failed, when well commanded, to make a conſpicuous figure.

The ſtate of things in France, from the murder of the unfortunate monarch, to the preſent hour, is very truly expreſſed in the following paſſage from Boileau, adapted by the author of The Purſuits of Literature.

" Déchirans á l'envie leur propre République
Lions contre Lions, parens contre parens,
Combattent follement pour LE CHOIX DES TYRANS."

The ſuperiority of a good man over a villain is never more diſcernible than in times of embarraſſment or danger. The one is upheld through every extremity by the mens conſcia recti: animated by the belief that he deſerves no evils, he is proud to confide that evil will aſſail him in vain. "Not ſo the ungodly." When danger is abroad, the worm that gnaws within, continually reminds him that his viſitation may be at hand, that it can never come untimely, and that it cannot fall too ſevere.

Of all the various ſpecies of democrats, your cream-viſaged, ſmiling gentry, are the moſt deteſtable. Thoſe pleaſant, jocoſe, good-humored democrats who are "the beſt of company," invariably poſſeſs on near inſpection, the heart of Robeſpierre along with the viſage of Carrier. Such a fellow is a fit agent to employ a pettifogging under-devil to entrap an Hercules, or for any other act of meanneſs, baſeneſs and cowardice.

A correſpondent of a newſpaper printed at Auguſta, in Georgia, ſuggeſts to the corporation the propriety of prohibiting ſhooting and ſporting on the Sabbath-day.

In addition (he obſerves) to the impiety of ſuch open profanation of that day, the public worſhip is frequently interrupted thereby, and an example ſet highly pernicious to the riſing generation.

GENS GRIS.

Every perſon who has attended to the ſtate and progreſs of the French revolution, through its different ſtages, muſt have obſerved the almoſt continual exiſtence of three diſtinct paaties, down to the murder of the king; from which time, I conſider them as all united and intereſted in one common view. While theſe three parties laſted, the patriots were continually betrayed into the hands of the revolutionizers, by counting on the medium men, who inceſſantly threw their weight into the adverſe ſcale. It is preciſely ſo with us: Between the friends to government and the adherents of France, a numerous body of men, are led from various cauſes to ſteer a middle courſe—As at the conflux of two eddying currents, the floating chaff is borne in revolution round a narrow and abſtracted circle, waiting the predominance of one or other, ſo they, wavering, ſtand aloof from ſurrounding ſtrife, now ſacrificing in ſecret at the ſhrine of federaliſm, now in private worſhipping ſome Democratic idol, as the Dæmon which is to devour them. "Medium iter tutiſſimus ibis," is their Alcoran, their ſole rule of conduct, and ſole ſtandard of moral and political orthodoxy. But in theſe caſes, the maxim is a deluſive one, and like the chaff between conflicting currents, they will early be engulphed in the vortex which theſe create.

The Democratic papers have ſuſpended their abuſe of our naval officers, who have recently diſtinguiſhed themſelves by making captures from the enemy, in order to abet the ſovereign people who have riſen à la Françaiſe in the northern parts of this ſtate. How abſurd is it, to talk of a French faction in America! theſe people have the ſame common object in view with us—aiming only to come at it by different means. This is ſo clear, that none but the moſt uncandid can believe in the exiſtence of French influence in America.

Mrs. Robinſon, the Poeteſs and Novelliſt, having finiſhed her Sappho and Phäon, ſent a billet to Mr. BOADEN, compoſitor of Dramatic pieces, with a requeſt that he would furniſh her with a few puffs for her Sappho and Phäon. The ſervant took the note, not to Mr. Boaden the Compoſitor, but to Mr. Boaden, the Paſtry Cook, who returned for anſwer, that he ſhould be much obliged to Mrs. R. for her cuſtom; but having made a practice of ſupplying none but his old cuſtomers without the money, was extremely ſorry he found himſelf obliged to diſappoint the little ones.

LEX TALIONIS.

The owner of a Goat, which had been treſpaſſing for ſome time, went to a magiſtrate to inform againſt himſelf, and deſired to know his fine, which was half a dollar. Having paid his forfeit, he obſerved to the magiſtrate, that he had one thing further to mention—a perſon (whom he named) had ſince ſhot his goat in the ſtreet. The deſtroyer of the Goat, was of courſe immediately fined twenty ſhillings, for a breach of the ordinance.

In the Houſe of Repreſentatives of Pennſylvania, a bill deſignating taxable property being under conſideration, a federal member obſerved that aſſes were not mentioned in the bill, and moved to amend it, by inſerting the word aſſes. This met with violent oppoſition from the democratic ſide of the houſe. A ſailor in the Lobby ſaid to his meſſmate, "Why d—mn my eyes Jack, d'ye ſee, dog wont eat dog."

Capt. Elliot, with a company of Artilleriſts and Engineers, from Mud Fort, marches to day for Newtown, in Buck County. It is probable that he will there join the detachment from N. York, and that the whole will thence proceed to Eaſton, the county town of Northampton.

Reſolved, That we will exert all our influence with our fellow citizens to fruſtrate the vile and boaſted diplomatic ſkill of any foreign enemy, and the ſtill baſer and more deteſtable intentions of a domeſtic faction againſt our beloved country.

having met at the houſe of Lewis Young, March 20, 1799,—Twenty members preſent.

The critical ſituation in which this country ſtands at preſent, being threatened by a perfidious foreign enemy, and its tranquility ſhaken by a domeſtic faction, who have with force and arms oppoſed the operation of the laws of the United States having been mentioned,

A motion was made and ſeconded, That this company will turn out when thereunto legally required, either to ſuppreſs internal inſurrection or repel foreign invaſion.

On the queſtion being put it was unanimouſly agreed to.

The members preſent expreſſed their diſapprobation in ſtrong terms of thoſe who had been tantalizing the company by giving their ſignatures and with-holding their ſervices,

Therefore reſolved, That the third ſection of the articles of aſſociation be tranſcribed and printed, and at the next meeting all who do not come forward with a proper excuſe be expelled the company and their names given to the public, in order to prevent further impoſition, on other uniform companies.

SECTION 3d.

As ſoon as the Officers ſhall be commiſſioned and the Company equipped with Arms and Uniform, we then pledge ourſelves to each other to turn out in defence of our country, either to repel foreign invaſion, or ſuppreſs internal inſurrection when thereunto legally required.

From a Paris paper of November 11.

Department of the Ardêche and the Upper Loire.

The ex-marquis of Surville, commander for the pretender in the ſouth of France, and whoſe arreſtation were lately announced, was condemned to the puniſhment of death, on the 17th Vendemaire, by the military commiſſion ſitting at Puy.

The conſpirator was no ways terrified by the preſence of his judges. He perſiſted in declaring that his name was not Surville, but Dulard. He thought that this obſtinate denial of his name would tend to intimidate the witneſſes againſt him. But his perſon was too ſtrongly identified to encourage the hope that a borrowed name would ſave him from conviction, either by witneſs or judges: he was unanimouſly recognized as the ex-marquis of Surville. Being thus diveſted of all hope, diſſimulation gave place to truth, and he immediately avowed himſelf to be the marquis of Surville, adding the following expreſſions:

"If you had not been ſo anxious for my ſpeedy deſtruction, and I could have had a conference with Barras, I ſhould have made a diſcovery which would have aſtoniſhed all France. You, gentleman, tell the public, if you pleaſe, that I do not die like a treacherous brother, but that I die for my king. I have been ſincere, and I die in defending my cauſe. I acknowledge that I am not able to conceive why I did not ſucceed in my enterprize. I had more than thirty departments at my command, and ſeveral of the conſtituted authorities—It muſt be concluded that Providence has been hoſtile to the ſucceſs of my projects."

Having made this ſhort declaration, he requeſted pen, ink and paper, to write a laſt adieu to his ſpouſe. This letter, which is deeply fraught with the moſt ſentimental eloquence, has, among others, theſe words—"To-morrow, my dear friend, a baptiſm of blood will waſh away all the ſtains of my life." He then addreſſed the following letter to his beloved moſt Chriſtian Majeſty, recommending to him the Jailor of Puy:

SIRE,

"I am about to die for the glory of the French name, and for the auguſt cauſe of your moſt Chriſtian Majeſty. I entruſt theſe lines to the keeper of the priſon of Puy, from whence I am to proceed to execution; he will convince your majeſty of the impoſſibility of my tranſmitting another communication. This man has not been deſtitute of regard for me; and he has promiſed, that he will treat with tenderneſs all who may be in my ſituation. It is on this account that I entreat in his favor the clemency and attention of your majeſty. Deign, Sire, to accept the moſt reſpectful homage of the moſt faithful of your ſervants, and to forgive the inefficacy of the efforts which he has made to prove himſelf worthy of the confidence with which your majeſty has condeſcended to honor him.

I am,
With the profoundeſt reſpect,
Sire,
Your moſt Chriſtian Majeſty's
Moſt humble & obed't ſervant
The Marquis of Surville.

The moment which was to terminate his exiſtence being arrived, he walked forth to meet his fate with all the courage which royal fanaticiſm had ſo deeply infuſed into his mind, accompanied by a Conſtitutional Prieſt.

WILLIAM S. THOM, informs

the public that JOHN POOR had no intereſt nor concern in the Goods which were depoſited in his cellar. Whatever ſuſpicions we might entertain on the ſubject, it would be hard to prove his having an intereſt in the property, it is however an unfortunate circumſtance for that gentleman, that in the ſame advertiſement William Thom likewiſe aſſerts that thoſe goods were not ſecreted. In order that a true judgment may be formed of the credit due to this ſalvo we will aſk—Why were the goods packed up after dark, with the window over the door darkened by a blanket hung up behind it?—Why was a porter called up out of his bed? and why was the candle extinguiſhed when they were taken away, and his poor little boy left, as he ſaid, in the dark, till the whole (three loads) were carried off?—two of theſe loads were hauled to John Poor's cellar, and received by himſelf at near eleven o'clock at night. Several days elapſed before the porter employed in the buſineſs was diſcovered—On taking him and a Sheriff's officer to this ſchoolmaſter's, he at firſt denied having any ſuch goods in his poſſeſſion, but on being informed that the porter was ready to atteſt that he delivered them to him, he confeſſed there were ſome goods in his cellar, but would not confeſs that he knew where they came from, whoſe they were, or any thing about them Indeed ſo great was his caution, that he abſolutely refuſed to take a receipt from the Sheriff's officer when he took them away. We ſhall juſt add, that this ſchoolmaſter was the firſt perſon ſuſpected by us to have the goods in his poſſeſſion, as we can fully prove.

The Conſtitutional Gazette;
AND Republican Courier.

The Subſcriber reſpectfully offers to the Public, proposals for a Newspaper, under the title of the Conſtitutional Gazette; and Republican Courier.

IT is intended to be publiſhed three times a week in the city of Philadelphia; viz. on every Monday, Wedneſday and Friday evening. The ſubſcription will be five dollars per annum, half to be paid by ſubſcribers in the city when called for. The difficulty of collecting ſmall ſums in the country, renders it neceſſary to aſk the ſubſcription, out of the city, to be paid in advance, or the name of a perſon in Philadelphia who will pay them regularly.

Although the propoſed Newſpaper will be of a ſmaller ſize than the unhandy ſheets now generally in uſe, it will contain as much as the generality of the daily Gazettes. It is expected that a very ſmall portion of it will be occupied by advertiſements, which will occaſion an unuſual quantity of intelligence and information. It will be publiſhed in the quarto form, and regularly paged, to render it convenient for binding in volumes, to each of which an Index will be attempted.

The principles intended to be ſupported, are thoſe of the Federal and State Conſtitutions. The friends of the tranquility, peace and happineſs of this country, may rely on a calm, decent and firm adherence to thoſe valuable Republican codes. The Editor is unwilling to make large promiſes, but he aſſures his friends and the public, that he has ground to rely on important literary and political contributions from various ſources. Without ſuch an expectation, he would not have undertaken, at this time, to publiſh a new Gazette. He believes the Preſs to be the nobleſt inſtrument in the command of Freemen, and he flatters himſelf that The Conſtitutional Gazette will not be found among the moſt exceptionable, nor among the leaſt uſeful Subſcriptions are received by the different bookſellers, and at the ſubſcriber's office, No. 90, South Third ſtreet, at which place the Weekly Magazine continues to be publiſhed.
